S. T.—1860.—X—The amount of Plantation Bitters sold in one year is something startling. They would fill Broadway six feet high, from the Park to 4th street.—Drake's manufactory is one of the institutions of N. York. It is said that Drake painted all the rocks in the eastern States with his caballistic "S.T.—1860.—X," and then got the old granny legislators to pass a law "preventing disfiguring the face of nature," which gives him a monopoly We do not know how this is, but we do know the Plantation Bitters sell as no other article ever did. They are used by all classes of the community, and are death on Dyspepsia—certain. They are very invigorating when languid and weak, and a great appetizer.

WHAT DID IT?—A young lady, returning to her country home after a sojourn of a few months in New York, was hardly recognized by her friends. In place of a rustic, flushed face, she had a soft, ruby complexion, of almost marble smoothness; and instead of 22, she really appeared but 17. She told them plainly she used Bingan's Magnolia Balm, and would not be without it. Any lady can improve her personal appearance very much by using this article. It can be ordered of any Druggist for only 50 cents.

Heimstreet's Inimitable Hair Coloring has been steadily growing in favor for over twenty years. It acts upon the absorbents at the roots of the hair, and changes it to its original color by degrees. All instantaneous dyes deaden and injure the hair. Heimstreet's is not a dye, but is certain in its results, promotes its growth, and is a beautiful Hair Dressing. Price 50 cents and $1,00. To the Memory of a Sister.

Can it be, our darling Mary,
That thy gentle spirit's fled;
Gone from earth, aye, and forever,
Numbered with the holy dead!

Cold, my sister, thou art lying
In thy narrow bed to-day,
And the chilling winds are sighing
O'er thy grave a funeral lay.

Soon the snows of early winter
Will o'er thy tomb a mantle spread;
White and pure (like thee, Mary,)
They will fall upon thy head.

When the Spring shall come, Mary,
And the flowers begin to grow,
We'll not forget thee then, darling,
To thy resting place we'll go.

With the choicest flowers, Mary,
We'll bedeck thy simple mound;
And the birds for thee, Mary,
Shall make their sweetest sounds.

Then fare thee well, dear Mary,
Though on earth we meet no more—
But 'tis joy to think, sister,
We'll meet upon the other shore.

Looking Under the Bed.

It is the habit of many persons to take a look under the bed before retiring for the night. Mrs. Evergreen, my beloved wife, indulges, if indulgence it can be called, in this peculiar practice. I do not object to it the least so long as she does not enforce the performance upon myself, but when, as is sometimes the case, she forgets it until she has put out the light and ensconced herself under the comforter, then it is hard that I, who am not troubled with nervous apprehensiveness, should have to get out in the cold and do it for her. I have often remarked to Mrs. Evergreen, when I have seen her prying under the bed, that it was a silly habit, and that the sooner she gave it up the better. To this gentle admonition my better half invariably rejoins:

"La, Evergreen! What harm does it do? It's a kind of satisfaction to know that nobody's under there. And then I don't think of such a horrible thing after I'm in bed."

"I think, my dear, you might just as well pursue your investigation further and look into the bureau drawers and the clothes basket!"

"Evergreen," she will rejoin, "don't mention the idea, or I shall certainly do so. Come to think of it, a man could very easily get into the clothes basket!"

"Certainly he could, my dear, quite as easily as Falstaff. You should certainly include the clothes basket, and by-the-by, there's the chimney; who not look up that as well?"

"Now, Evergreen, you're laughing at me. But I can't leave off the habit, and I never will. It's a comfort for me to know that there's nothing wrong about it, and I don't see why you should deprive me of it."

So under the bed goes the candle, and no signs of humanity being discovered Mrs. Evergreen is able to repose in peace. But as already observed, this precautionary act is some times forgotten, and I am myself obliged to rise, light the lamp, and report. I've done it rather more frequently of late than is agreeable, and have intimated as much to Mrs. E. She says:

"Very well, Evergreen, I'll do it myself."

But this procedure is almost equally as bad, for she invariably lets the cold in on me both in getting out and getting in. If it were not for increasing this mental idiosoynocrsy on the part of Mrs. Evergreen, by giving her some good reason to apprehend danger, I should relate to her what I am about to lay before the reader. In this narration, therefore, I ask the public most particularly to bear in mind that Mrs. Evergreen is of a sensitive nature, rather apprehensive and slightly superstitious, and that what I have to say, must under no circumstances, be told again. If for two-and-twenty years (that is the period of our wedded life, and happy years they have been)—if, I say, I have for this long period refrained from imparting the matter to the beloved sharer of my joys and partaker of my sorrows, surely the public (which, as we know, always does keep a secret) will keep mine.

All young men, I suppose, have love affairs before they eventually fix their affections on the one who is to bless their lot in life. I know that I had, and I don't regret it. Regret it? far from it. Mrs. Evergreen is not present, and therefore I have no hesitation in saying that if I had my life to live over again I'd like to go through with the same sentimental experience, particularly if it was to be succeeded by again leading to the hymenial altar the present Mrs. Evergreen.

I was not bad-looking when I was in my twenties. I think I may go further, and confidentially say that "Gus Evergreen" was a decided favorite among the girls of Oaksville, and I really believe that I could have had any of them "for the asking." As I before remarked, Mrs. Evergreen is not present, and I indulge my thoughts some what more freely than would otherwise be the case. I don't think that I cared particularly for any of the Oaksville girls, however and I might have kept my heart whole this day if it had not been for the circumstances which I am about to relate.

Fred Evans, who had been my chum at school, came to make me a visit at Oaksville for "a day or two," as he said, when he came; but he made it a week or two easily enough after I'd taken him about a little among the "young ladies." When that time had expired Fred said he really must go, as he didn't know what his father and mother would think of his long absence; but it ended in his relieving their anxiety by a letter and sending for his trunks. I knew how the matter was perfectly well, and that Belle Bronson had bewitched him out of his five senses. Fred used to put it on to the "country air and the quiet which was benefiting his health, &c.," but it was no use trying to deceive me, and I told him so. Then he owned up frankly, and I promised to help him all I could, if he required any help in the prosecution of his suit. I never thought Belle a flirt, or that she would willingly distress any human being; but she had way of looking into one's eyes as if to captivate them for her more personal amusement.

At any rate she had a larger share of beaux than the other girls, but all their attentions came to nothing. I feared it might be so with Fred Evans and warned him accordingly, but Fred said he'd "have her if he tried all his life;" that "without her, life was naught to him;" that "she was the only living being who had ever awakened a real emotion in his breast," &c., &c. After that I said no more, but closely observed the lovers, and soon came to the conclusion that Fred was by no means disagreeable to her. Things went on in this way without any definite results until Fred received a sudden summons home on account of his mother's illness. When he came back to renew his visit he insisted upon staying at the Oaksville Hotel rather than wear out his welcome at our house, and finding remonstrances unavailing, there he went. The landlord (honest old Downsbury—I wonder if he yet lives) gave Fred, at my suggestion, his best bed room, "No 20"—I am particular in mentioning the number. "He shall have No. 20," said Downsbury. "Any friend of yours, Master Augustus, shall have the best I have to give as long's I'm landlord." It was a pleasant room, looking out on the distant hills and the beautiful winding branch of the Black water; but what cared Fred for scenery? He was in the hands of the blind god, and could not see even as far as his nose, except in the direction of Belle's cottage. I used to go over to Fred's room and smoke my cigar, while he, poor wretch, expatiated on his sufferings, doubts, and solicitudes. Did she love him? that was the question which disturbed every moment of his existence, and to which, with the closest reasoning, he could not bring himself a satisfactory reply. Sometimes he thought a word or a sign settled the point beyond a doubt in his favor, and at others he fancied he read a coolness and indifference in her eyes. In this condition of uncertainty he dared not to press the question lest a hasty stop might bring him to grief.

At Fred's earnest solicitation I promised to sound Belle as to her sentiments, if a favorable opportunity presented itself, or at any rate to let her know, in an indirect way, that Fred was languishing in distress on her account, and thus give her no excuse for unnecessarily prolonging his misery. It so happened, however, that my services were not called into requisition. Belle Bronson, because of the sudden arrival at her house of some country cousins, was obliged to give up her room—and to occupy for a single night a room at the hotel. We would cheerfully have offered her guests accomodations at our house, but we were in the same predicament. An agricultural fair in the village had brought many strangers to the place, and our guests were so numerous that I had given up my room to two of them, and had intended asking Fred Evans to let me pass the night with him.

For this purpose I went to the hotel at a late hour, and proceeded at once to Fred's room, but to my surprise found no one there. I did not even notice that the trunk was gone, or suspect the fact, which afterwards became apparent, that "to oblige some lady guest for this night only," as the landlord expressed it, Fred had consented to give up "No. 20" and occupy a small room in the rear of the building. The gas being turned up, I took a book to await his return, and hearing at last what appeared to be steps approaching the room, and supposing it to be Fred, in a momentary impulse to play a joke on him, I slipped under the bed, a large and high one, intending to imitate a cat (of which animal I know he had a detestation) as soon as he entered the room. The door opened, and I was on the point of indulging in my ventriloquical faculty by giving a long-drawn meow, when from my hiding place I beheld Belle Bronson take possession of the apartment!

My astonishment was so great, and the sense of mortification so intense, that I did not, as I should have done, make myself immediately known to her. Thus the opportunity for discovery and explanation was lost. I dared not move a hair, but hoped sincerely that some excuse might take her out of the room for a moment, and so facilitate my escape. She, however, locked the door, removed the key, and, as I know by the sound, prepared to retire. Finally she kneeled down beside the bed, and clasping her hands and bowing her head (so fearfully near to mine that I could hear the soft words in my very ear), she offered up her evening prayes in a manner so full of feeling, and with such sweet accents of womanly tenderness and devotion, that I felt as if she was an angel bending over the vilest of mortals. That prayer went to my heart; but one portion went through it and held it captive. Never shall I forget my feelings of surprise and deep emotion when I heard her utter these words: "Bless my dear mother, sisters, and friends; bless all around me, and, O God bless him I love, Augustus Evergreen, and shower down thy mercies over him. Amen." "Ah, Augustus," said my divinity to herself, as she rose from her devotional attitude, "if you but knew that I named your very name in my prayers, you would be less indifferent to me!"

If I breathed short before, after this my breath seemed to desert me entirely, and I verily thought that the beating of my heart would betray me. Belle, pure as an angel to me then, and white as a snow flake, proceeded to turn off the gas and get into bed. I felt her soft pressure over my head, and shrunk closer and closer to the hard floor upon which I was extended. What thoughts rushed through my brain! above me lay a young unsophisticated girl wholly unconscious that the one she loved lay so closely to her, and who had for the first time been made aware of her interest in him, by hearing words which she supposed went only to Heaven! I knew then that the night must pass away, and the morning come, and that Belle must first leave the apartment before I could venture to change even my position.

Belle had lain perfectly motionless for several minutes and was, I flattered myself, losing herself in sleep, when suddenly she exclaimed to herself, "There—I haven't looked under the bed." A horror ran through me; all is lost; what should I do? Belle rose and I heard her feeling for the matches. She struck one and was moving toward the gas-light, when the lucifer went out, leaving all darkness again. Blessed relief; but how brief! Again I heard her feeling for the matches and trying to light one after another, as they failed to ignite; then an "Oh dear, there are no more!" escaped from her lips. "Safe! safe!" whispered my soul to me, and I thanked God in silence for my deliverance. Belle groped back to the bed, but did not immediately get in; she stooped and lifted the curtains which hung around the bottom and cautiously passed her arm under and around as far as it could reach. I almost felt her fingers graze my face as I held myself fearfully and silently back against the wall, too far, just too far for her reach. Apparently satisfied that no danger was near her, she lay down in the bed again, and I counted her respirations till she was lost in slumber.

As for myself, sleep was utterly out of the question. I never was so wide awake in my life. How I lay upon that hard carpet and thought the night out!—thought of her, and her love for me, thought of myself and my love for her. Yes, I was convinced from that moment that the hand of destiny was in it, and that a benign and all-wise Providence had seen fit in this extraordinary way to open my eyes to the path of happiness and peace.

With the morning light fresh fears came upon me lest my unconscious room-mate might yet peer beneath the bed for robbers before she left the room, but my fears were groundless. She rose and dressed expeditiously, for she was to join her cousins at an early breakfast, and she had overslept herself. When at last she took the key, unlocked the door and departed, I lost no time in slipping out of my shameful place of concealment and escaping from the hotel. On the stairs, I met Fred coming out of his room, who exclaimed:

"Why, what's the matter with you, old fellow! You look like the last days of an ill-spent life. And your coat, too—why it's all over feathers and dust. Where have you been?"

"Why, I slept out last night; that's all. Our house is full, and so I had to find quarters elsewhere. I'm just going home to dress."

"I should say so decidedly. I see it all, old fellow! You've been on a lark, and had to put up in the watch house; come now, own up and tell us all about it."

"No lark at all, Fred; nothing of the kind, I assure you."

"Well, if not a lark, what kind of a bird was it? From the looks of the feathers I should say it was a goose."

"You're the goose, Fred. But seriously, I've a word to say to you of a most important nature. Be a man, Fred, and make up your mind to hear something excessively disagreeable. It must be told you sooner or later, and I may as well tell it now."

"Good Heavens, Gus! how earnest you look at me; you don't mean to say that—that anything has happened to Belle Bronson?"

"Don't mention her name again, Fred, or think of her any more, for she'll never be anything to you. I have it from one who knows all about it, that she has long been attached to somebody else, and that somebody else means to marry her. There's no mistake about it; so bear up and try your luck elsewhere."

But Fred Evans was not to be discouraged by mere hearsay. That very day he went to see Belle, determined to know his fate from her own lips. Soon after he left Oakville, and I did not see him for several years, when, meeting him in town one day, I insisted on bringing home with me and presenting him to his old flame, Belle Bronson—the present Mrs. Evergreen.

"Ah, Gus!" said he, after dinner, when my wife and the little Evergreens had left us to ourselves—"Ah Gus, you served me a shabby trick when you allowed me to lose my heart to the girl you were all along intending to marry yourself—a very shabby trick, one of which I never suspected you!"

So I had to tell him (in strict confidence, of course, as I tell you, reader,) all about the bedroom affair at the Oakville Hotel, and the love that grew out of it.

Popular Fallacies.

The following is from Hall's Journal of Health: That warm air must be impure, and that, consequently, it is hurtful to sleep in a comparatively warm room. A warm one is as easily ventilated as a cool one. The warm air of a close vehicle is less injurious, be it ever so foul from crowding, than to ride and sit still and feel uncomfortably cold for an hour. The worst that can happen from a crowded conveyance is a fainting spell; while, from sitting even less than an hour in a still, chilly atmosphere, has induced attacks of pneumonia, that is, inflammation of the lungs, which often prove fatal in three or four days. It is always positively injurious to sleep in a close room where water freezes, because such a degree of cold causes the negatively poisonous carbonic acid gas of a sleeping room to settle near the floor, where it is breathed and rebreathed by the sleeper, and is capable of producing typhoid fevers in a few hours. Hence there is no advantage, and always danger, especially to weak persons, in sleeping in an atmosphere cooler than the freezing point.

That it is necessary to the proper and efficient ventilation of a room, even in warm weather, that a window or door should be left open; this is always hazardous to the sick and convalescent. Quite as safe a plan of ventilation, and as efficient, is to keep a lamp or a small fire burning in the fire place. This creates a draft, and carries bad airs and gases up the chimney.

That out-door exercise before breakfast is healthful. It is never so. And from the very nature of things, is hurtful, especially to persons of poor health; although the very vigorous may practice it with impunity. In winter the body is easily chilled thro' and through unless the stomach has been fortified with a good warm breakfast, and in warm weather miasmatic and malarious gases and emanations act upon the empty and weak stomach in a way to vitiate the circulation and induce fever and ague, diarrhœa, and dysentery. Entire families, who have arranged to eat breakfast before leaving the house, and to take supper before sundown, have had a complete exemption from fever and ague, while the whole community around them was suffering from it, from having neglected these precautions.

That whatever lessens a cough, is "good" for it, and, if persevered in, will cure it. On the contrary, all coughs are soonest cured by promoting and increasing them; because nature endeavors by the cough to help bring up the phlegm and yellow matter which is in the lungs, as the lungs cannot heal while that matter is there. And as it cannot be got rid of without coughing, the more coughing there is, the sooner it is got rid of—the sooner are the lungs cleared out for the fuller and freer reception of pure air, which is their natural food. The only remedies which can do any good in coughs are such as loosen the phlegm, and thus less cough is required to bring it up. These remedies are warmth, out-door exercise, and anything which slightly nauseates.

I, Andrew G. Curtin, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do, by this my proclamation, recommend that the good people of the Commonwealth observe Thursday, the 29th day of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and do then assemble in their respective churches and places of worship, and make their humble thank offering to Almighty God for all His blessings during the past year.

For the thus far continued activity of industry;

For the general preservation of health;

And especially for that, in His divine mercy, He hath stayed the threatened pestilence.

And, moreover, that they do beseech Him to continue unto us all His blessings, and to confirm the hearts of the people of these United States, that by the lawful force of their will, deeds of good justice, wisdom, and mercy may be done.

Capital Ghost Story.

DEDICATED IN AN ESPECIAL MANNER TO ALL NEWSPAPER READERS.

That apparitions do not always wander without sufficient cause, is proved by the well attested fact which we give below:

Last Tuesday fortnight, as Mrs. ——, a lady of rather literary taste and studious habit, sat reading in the drawing room, the clock on the mantle-piece struck twelve; as the last stroke reverberated through the apartments the door was flung wide open! in the act of raising her head to repel the intrusion (unrung for) of her servant, her eye rested on the form of her late husband! She screamed and fell senseless on the carpet! This brought up such members of the family as had not retired to rest; restoratives were administered, and when Mrs. ——, had regained her suspended faculties, and being a woman of strong mind and highly cultivated intellect, she felt disposed to consider the whole distress she had undergone as the result of certain associations between the melancholy tale she had been pursuing and her late loss, operating on a partially deranged nervous system. She however, considered it advisable that her maid servant should repose in her chamber, lest any return of what she considered a nervous affection should distress herself and alarm the family. Last Tuesday night, feeling stronger and in better spirits than she had been for several months past, Mrs. —— dispensed with the presence of her attendant, retiring alone to her chamber, went to bed a little before ten o'clock. Exactly as the clock struck twelve she was awakened from sleep, and distinctly beheld the apparition she had before seen, advancing from the table, on which stood her night lamp, till it stood opposite to and drew aside the curtains of her bed. She describes her very blood retreating with icy chillness to her heart from every vein. The countenance of her beloved in life wore not its benevolent aspect; the eyes once beaming with affection, were now filled with stern regard on the trembling, half-dissolved being, who, with the courage of description, thus adjured him, "Charles! dear Charles! why are you come again?"

"Jessie," slowly and solemnly aspirated the shadowy form, waving in his hand a small roll of writing paper, "Jessie, pay my newspaper accounts and let me rest in peace!"

MOZART'S REQUIEM.—Those of you who have learned to play on the piano, may know that Mozart composed some of the most beautiful pieces, but did you ever hear of his last? For weeks he had been engaged in its composition; at length every note was harmonious, and the gratified musician sank back on his cushion in a sweet reverie. The light footstep of his daughter entering the room aroused him.

"Emilie," he called, "sit down and play for me my requiem; it is my own requiem."

"O, do not say that, my father," answered the affectionate girl, while the quick tears sprang to her eyes at the thought of lossing her beloved father."

"Play, my child," he repeated, "and sing the hymn your mother used to love so well."

Emilie sat down to the instrument, and began a sad prelude; the father lay with closed eyes, listening. Soon the heavenly music filled the soul of the young girl with holy aspirations, and the faith and hope expressed in the hymn seemed all her own; the heavy weight of sadness gradually disappeared, and she sang like an angel. When the piece was finished, she sat for a moment in silence, and then turned to meet her father's accustomed glance of sympathy. His eyes were closed, and looking intently, she perceived that he lay motionless. With a cry of terror, she sprang to his side, and there she fell senseless, for the first glance told that her father was dead. She had sung his soul to heaven.—Children's Friend.

A FEW WORDS ON SQUEEZING.—While we are growing very sensible indeed in the matter of dress, as far as boots, Balmoral skirts, warm stockings and high necks, we are degenerating in some other matters quite as important. The corset is now a necessary part of a woman's wardrobe; and, alas! when a woman does begin to wear corsets, she will wear them too small, and will tug at the laces till her breath becomes short, and feels it necessary to refrain from anything like a comfortable meal. We say nothing against a well shaped corset worn loose, but there lies the difficulty. A loose corset injures the appearance of the figure instead of improving it, and people wear corsets that they may have small waists. All we can say is, do not squeeze, whatever you do; you may have small waists, but you are exposing yourself to a dozen misfortunes which are worse than a large waist.—First, you'll surely have dyspepsia, and grow yellow and cross and unhappy; secondly, your hands will grow red; thirdly, your nose; fourthly, you will be unable to walk a mile at once; fifthly, dinner will be a misery; sixthly, your shoulder blades will increase in size and altitude; seventhly, your eyes will grow weak; eighthly, you will break at thirty or thereabout, and be a sickly old woman from that time forth. If these truths do not frighten women from tight corsets, perhaps the information that gentlemen generally do not admire what dressmakers call a "pretty figure" so much as a natural one, may have some influence.

The True System of Farming.

Trying to do too much is a common error into which the farmer often falls. His great eagerness in striving to be rich is doubtless the cause of this error. He is ambitious, and forms plans on a larger scale, and often, perhaps, without counting the cost. He buys a large farm, and wants to be called a "large farmer," and often without understanding or considering the true elements that constitute a real farmer. He fancies the greatness of that profession, as is too often the common estimate, to be in proportion to the number of acres, not to say cultivated, but embraced within the boundaries of his domain.

A large farm does not necessarily make a man rich, contented or happy, but, on the contrary, the reverse, unless well tilled, when his labor is rewarded by fair success in the various departments in which he is engaged. To realize a full benefit of his profession, a farmer must adopt a thorough system of culture. Success always depends upon the manner in which he prepares his ground, plants his seeds, and rears his stock. Neither of these departments will take care of themselves. The soil may be rich, but it needs culture. His seeds may be sown, but it should be in due time, and always on soil well prepared and of a suitable quality for the production of the crops required; and his stock must be constantly cared for. The farmer's better judgment must be constantly exercised in keeping up this system of reciprocal benefits.

The very corner-stone of the whole system of farming is to do what you do thoroughly. Nature will not be cheated, and never gives full returns to the half-way work that is practiced by many farmers. If the land has been worn, the extent of that exhaustion and the requirements must first be considered; and when ascertained, the full measure of those requirements must be given to bring out good returns.

And with the labor—two men cannot suitably till one hundred acres of land, when the labor of two men, and perhaps, four might be profitably employed on seventy-five acres. This is the great error in farming. Two men strive to do what four can hardly do, and thus hundreds of acres are but half tilled and produce but half crops. The land is run over till worn out, and made to sustain year after year the unnatural tax, till its energies are exhausted, and will remain so till the first elements of its powers are returned. This is especially the case in many of the Western and Southern States. The great boast of the West is large farms and large fields of grain; plow, sow and reap, is the business of the western farmers, drawing out the very life of the soil and sending it away in the heavy exports that are constantly going onward, and returning but very little to the soil to make it productive.

The light that is being spread abroad on this subject is beginning to correct this practice to some extent. When tillers of the soil understand their true interests, they will cultivate no more land than they can do well. Fifty acres of land for tillage, brought to a high state of cultivation, pay better than one hundred run over in the way that many do. F. T. G.

THE HOG TRADE.—Hogs declined 50c in Cincinnati on the 15th, and were dull at the decline. Some fair average lots sold at $6 50@6 75; most of the sales made are to slaughterers, who are careful to dispose of the pieces before buying the hogs, so little confidence do they feel in the future of the market. The packers have lost money during the last two years when they had an outlet for the hog product through the foreign and army demand. Now they will have neither unless prices should come down to a point which will give a margin for shipment to Liverpool, and that point would be about $6 50 net for hogs here. There will be the Southern demand but it would not be safe to calculate on an increase over this year from that source, while the increase of hogs will be nearly fifty per cent. Whether farmers will sell their hogs on this basis remains to be seen. But how can they do better? The meat is in the country, no matter whether it is packed at home or at the packing centers, and if they do not accept present or lower prices for their hogs, they may have to sell their meat at relatively lower rates. We want to see the farmers get all that their hogs are worth, but we think they have their views too high.

HOW TO SELECT CHOICE FOWLS.—Some one who has been taking notes in the poultry line gives the following directions for selecting fowls that are young and tender: A young turkey has a smooth leg and a soft bill, and if fresh the eyes will be bright and the feet moist. Old turkeys have scaly, stiff feet. Young chickens have a tender skin, smooth legs, and the breast bone yields readily to the pressure of the finger. The best are those that have yellow legs. The feet and legs of old fowls look as if they had seen hard service in the world. Young ducks feel tender under the wing, and the web of the foot is transparent. The best are thick and hard on the breast. Young geese have yellow bills, and the feet are yellow and supple. The skin may be easily broken by the head of a pin; the breast is plump and the fat white. An old goose is unfit for the human stomach.

"I know of no mode in which a loyal citizen may so well demonstrate his devotion to his country as by sustaining the Flag the Constitution and the Union, under all circumstances, and UNDER EVERY ADMINISTRATION REGARDLESS OF PARTY POLITICS, AGAINST ALL ASSAILANTS, AT HOME AND ABROAD."—STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS.

AT SEA.—Parties are more at sea to-day on the reconstruction question than ever. The fact that leading Democratic journals and Democratic speakers are now advocating negro suffrage has somewhat confused the programme of the Radical Republicans. Indeed we would not be surprised to see the Democratic leaders everywhere falling into line with the most extreme men of the extremists of the Republican party, so anxious and determined are they to break the charm that appears to give the Republicans a hold upon the majority of voters. If the voters of both parties who are opposed to negroes voting and holding office resist the dictation of their leaders and refuse to follow them, then there may be a third and strong party organized from both to vote down the leaders if the negro question should be submitted to a vote in the States. But the leaders now have the control of Congress, and will hold it for two years, and the people can do no better than wait for something further to "turn up."

ADVANCED RADICALISM.—A Convention of the advance guard of Radicalism composed of men (white and black) and women was held in Philadelphia last week. Mr. Robert Purvis, an American citizen of African descent, presided. Wendell Phillips and others of his school made speeches. The President, Gen. Grant and Congress were handled roughly. Mr. Purvis was nominated for United States Senator, and one of the speakers, Mr. Powell, ventured to express the belief that Thaddeus Stevens, Wm. D. Kelley and Gov. Curtin will all endorse his claims to the extent of withdrawing their own aspirations for that distinguished position. We don't believe they will—but we may be mistaken, as stranger things in politics are happening every day. Even the Democratic leaders may have advanced that far by the first of January. They have made heavy strides in that direction lately.

Woman's Rights.

A Woman's Rights Convention was held in Albany, New York last week.

Lucy Stone Blackwell presided. She urged the advocates of equal rights to make common cause with the blacks. Mrs. Stanton, Fred. Douglass, Parker Pillsbury and others were present, and took part in the proceedings. Resolutions were adopted, strongly in favor of giving the right of suffrage to all, without regard to sex or color, and recommending the election of women as delegates to the approaching Constitutional Convention in that State.

PRESTO CHANGE.—The threats made during the late political contest that as soon as Congress would reassemble the President would be impeached, are seldom heard of now except from the lips of Phillips, Gen. Butler and one or two very bitter extremists. The more rational of the leaders now think a more moderate dealing with the President advisable. Compromise between Congress and the President appears to be the order of the day.

THE POOR NEGRO.—In the struggle of parties to use the poor negro for selfish purposes, his condition is gradually getting worse. From the South we have daily reports of their sufferings—starvation. From the Northern cities where large numbers have been thrown together, they are in little better condition. They will soon be compelled to exclaim, "save us from our friends."

Horace Greeley, editor of the N. Y. Tribune is a prominent candidate for U. S. Senator. The Legislature of that State is Republican and it is generally believed Mr. Greeley will be elected. He is in favor of Universal Amnesty and universal suffrage, and opposed to to hanging Jeff. Davis.

AFFAIRS IN MEXICO.—A letter from the Rio Grande, of a recent date, says: "Events of no little importance are evidently transpiring, and no man can tell what a day may bring forth. Sherman coming to this quarter is significant in the highest degree. I am satisfied that the Liberal party can never depose Maximilan without assistance from some friendly power. My information from the interior of Mexico, from private source, entirely truthful, is to the effect that very few of the French troops are gone home, the majority of them having already enlisted for three years in the service of Maximilian, under flattering promises made by the Emperor."

In the House of Representatives of Tennessee on the 19th the bill providing for impartial suffrage and universal amnesty was tabled by a vote of 39 to 29. The East Tennesseeans voted almost solid against it, while a majority of the conservatives favored the measure. The bill was introduced by the Radicals.

Impartial Suffrage.

Mr. Johnson's Opinion--His Difference with Congress--An Authorized Statement.

Suffrage should be conferred by the States, that right being guaranteed to each State by the Constitution. Andrew Johnson is favor of qualified suffrage in Tennessee as a citizen of that State. He authorized us, in behalf of the Chief Executive of the nation, to urge qualified suffrage for three classes of colored men of this District, in April last, and at his suggestion we renewed the proposition again in July, only about one week before Congress adjourned. We took special pains to notify several radical Senators and Representatives who are anxious inquirers on the subject, that the President was in favor of the plan proposed in the Republican. The radicals were afraid to touch the question, and went home to their several States and blackguarded the President, and declared that he was opposed to extending the right of suffrage to the black man.

Andrew Johnson is in favor of more for the black man in Tennessee, as a citizen of that State; he suggested to Governor Sharkey, of Mississippi, more for the colored men of that State, and requested and authorized us to urge upon Congress, at the last session, more for the colored men of this District than Charles Sumner, or Henry Wilson, or any other Congressman of Massachusetts ever urged for the colored men of their State.

No colored man fought in the Union army, or who owns property, no matter how much, can vote in Massachusetts unless he can read and write. President Johnson goes beyond that. He is in favor of granting suffrage to all colored men, wherever the Constitution gives him the power to do it, who can read and write, or who served honorably in the Union army, who owns property to the extent of two hundred and fifty dollars and upward.

The only difference between the President and Congress is, that the former believes that, under the Constitution, each State has the right to settle the question of suffrage for itself. Congress assumes the right to impose it upon the States, Constitution or no Constitution.—Washington Republican, November 19.

☞The Philadelphia Telegraph, of last week, ventures the following opinion in regard to the compromise of giving universal suffrage for universal amnesty, now being talked of, in contradistinction to the Constitutional amendment.

"The Constitutional amendment, while it contemplates universal suffrage, does not demand it. Again and again did our orators and writers asure the people that it was not the question before them. And now, to have it thrust upon us, with the extremely objectionable appendage of general amnesty, and without any guarantees for the payment of the national debt, is a compromise which to us is anything but desirable. The question of suffrage is merely a question of time. It is founded upon the immutable basis of justice, and must eventually be achieved. We doubt the propriety of such an extension to an uneducated and a servile race, without any preparation, so that even if the "compromise" was to be made in good faith, we would rather hold fast to the plan as secured by the amendment."

The Pittsburgh Commercial has the following on the same subject:

We do not, as we have said, go into the discussion of the proposed exchange itself. We abstain, not because of any difficulty or embarrassment apprehended in showing that there is no logical, visible or real propriety in connecting amnesty and suffrage, or in offsetting the one with the other, in the way proposed; but, because we have no evidence of the proposition being the suggestion or wish of the loyal people as represented in the Republican party. On the contrary, it would imply the abandonment of their platform immediately after the election, in which the people formally and enthusiastically indorsed it; and it would be an absurd admission of the boasted dead-lock, put upon the process of Amendment by the mere clamor of rebels and Democrats, while the Amendment has not been acted on by a half dozen States.

The Feeling in Business Circles.

From all quarters we learn that an uncomfortable feeling continues to prevail in business circles, growing out of a vague apprehension of coming financial trouble—an apprehension which is encouraged by certain cliques and combinations, that are supposed to find their account in a panic that will suddenly bring down prices and precipitate a revulsion. In New York this feeling is most noticeable among the dry goods dealers and the bankers, who are anxious to raise the rate of interest; but it exists only among the great body of the merchants.

In New York last week there was a heavy depreciation, not only in the prices of cotton, raw and manufactured, but also in provisions, naval stores, metals, wool, tallow and most other descriptions of merchandise. Some houses are known to have lost, and to be yet losing heavily, while many are of the opinion that we have not touched bottom yet. That is only the "bear" view of the case, however. The "bulls," on the contrary, attribute the decline to ordinary causes, think it portends nothing serious, and are certain it will speedily be followed by a movement in other directions.—Pittsburgh Com.

PROGRESS.—The Hon. Charles L. Miller, colored member elect to the Legislature of Massachusetts, will represent one of the wealthiest districts in the State. It is the home of ex-Governor Andrew and several other distinguished gentlemen, none of whom were thought worthy to fill the post to which Mr. Miller has been promoted. A dispatch to the New York Herald from Boston says: "The negro element, encouraged at the election of one of their number to the Legislature are figuring for an alderman, and councilman, and a school committeeman, from Ward Six, at the next municipal election."

☞Congress meets on Monday next the 2d of December.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

General Logan desires a denial of the statement published in a New York paper that he is in favor of impeaching the President. He hopes the Congress will make no attempt in that direction.

Parties who have conversed with Secretary Seward within a few days, state that he declared that the policy of granting universal amnesty, to be followed by the adoption of universal suffrage, is destined to be the basis upon which restoration will be finally completed. He agrees, however, with the President, that it belongs exclusively to the States to regulate the question of suffrage.

The persistent reiteration in sensation telegrams to the New York Herald, that there are twenty thousand troops in and about Washington, is authoritatively denied by the War Department. The whole number will not reach twenty-five hundred, and they have been stationed here on recruiting and other service for the past six months.

A bill has been prepared and will be introduced during the first week of the session, repealing the act of July 17th, 1862, which empowers the President to grant full or conditional pardons to persons engaged in the rebellion. If this law is repealed, the Executive will be limited to the constitutional prerogative of pardoning only after trial and conviction.

The programme of the mass welcome to Congress on its re-assembling next month has been determined upon by the Committee having it in charge. There will be a procession of soldiers, Republican and other loyal delegations present, a mass meeting with addresses, &c., by a number of distinguished speakers. General Logan will deliver the welcome oration, and a banquet will be given in the evening, at which the Radical Congressmen will be guests.

The following publication is made, apparently by authority, in the National Republican of this morning:—

"The President is necessarily engaged upon important public matters, preparatory to the early assembling of Congress, and will have no time until after the meeting of that body to give the slightest attention to applicants for office. All such are referred to heads of the different departments. Office-seekers and their friends can save themselves much time, labor, and expense by acting upon the above hint, and will relieve the President from the unpleasant necessity of declining to entertain and examine their applications. It is a physical impossibility for him to prepare his Message and at the same time transact the detail business appropriately belonging to his Cabinet Ministers."

The following items of appropriations have just been officially compiled from the Acts passed at the late session of Congress: Pensions, $17,940,000; Deficiency for sundry Civil Expenses, $4,904,514; Naval Service for the year ending June 30th, 1867, $18,904,667 50; Post Office Department for the year ending June, 1867, $1,947,955; Military Academy for the year ending June 30th, 1867, $301,457; Fortifications and other works of Defense, $5,540,000; Completion of Public Works, $3,698,047 91; Army for the year ending June 30th, 1867, $38,004,241 83; Legislative, Executive and Judicial Expences for the year ending June 30th, 1867, $25,430,450 89; Consular and Diplomatic Expenses for the year ending June 40th, 1867, $1,405,494; Indian Department for the year ending June 30th, 1867, $3,778,535, 45; Sundry Civil Expenses for the year ending June 30th, 1867, $7,074,127 76; Deficiencies for the year ending June 30th, 1867, $5,151,576; Miscellaneous, $12,705,635 60; Total, $155,881,781 16.

It is understood that the Secretary of the Treasury will devote considerable attention in his forthcoming report to the question of resumption of specie payments. He will undoubtedly ask for further power to fund the floating and non-interest bearing obligations of the Government, and will likewise urge a more concentrated system of redemption of national bank notes as a necessary preliminary to a resumption of specie payments. Mr. McCulloch thinks, with proper legislation, he may return to a specie standard within eighteen months. On the other hand, it is known to be the opinion of many leading bankers in the country that with one hundred millions of gold in the Treasury specie payments may be resumed within ninety days. And they argue that the entire security and great diversity of the circulation of the National Bank notes is one of the most potent elements to aid a resumption, and that the system of redemption should not, therefore, be more stringent than it now is, but, on the contrary, if any change be made, that it should be relaxed. This question will force itself upon the early attention of Congress, and will prove one of the most important of the session.

THE CASE OF JEFF DAVIS.—A Washington dispatch to the Pittsburg Commercial, says:

"The President, at the request of the Mississippi Commissioners, had a consultation last night with Chief Justice Chase with reference to the trial of Jeff Davis. Judge Chase gave the same reason, so well known, why the trial had not taken place, and that was the failure of Congress, in a law reorganizing the Judicial districts of the United States, to make a new allotment of the Judges for the new circuits. The President will also allude to this fact in his annual message."

BURIED ALIVE.—Mrs. McClure, a farmer's wife, living near Quincy, Illinois, apparently died on Sunday, and next day was burried in the family vault, near the house. On Wednesday groans were heard in the vault by some children; the coffin was opened and the woman found alive. She had injured herself in attempting to force open the coffin, but is recovering.

THE CONDITION OF MEMPHIS.—According to the Memphis newspapers, that city can scarcely be regarded at present as a very desirable place for a residence. The papers say that affrays occur nightly; men are shot; bullets fired into widows; and one hears nothing but "click, bang—I am shot," from one end of the city to the other.

The Paris correspondent of the London Post says that the relations between England and the United States will soon be critical.

In Paris some ingenious person is reported to have invented a mechanical horse, which is said to be the equal in all respects of the live animal. The only thing that prevents this mechanical contrivance from being introduced into general use is its cost, $10,000.—This sounds a little "horsy."

A law exists in Germany to prevent drinking on the Sabbath during Divine service. It runs thus: "Any person drinking in an ale house during service on Sunday, or other holiday, may legally depart without paying."—This isn't good law, only we would like to see it somewhat broader, and put in force here. We think back as well as front doors would then be closed against Sunday dram-drinkers

A census has recently been taken of the canine species inhabiting Paris. The city possesses 40,087 dogs, 35,000 of which are pets, and the balance watch dogs. This is an average of one dog to every 40 persons.—It would be interesting to know how many such animals there are in this community, but nobody wants to bother himself with dog statistics. Enough to say dogs are too plenty especially when meat ranges from 18@20.

On Thursday of last week one hundred and sixteen colored persons passed through Atlanta on their way to Charleston. They are going to Liberia, under the charge of a colored clergyman of Monrovia. The Savannah News says that a large number of such emigrants are already collected at Charleston. The colored persons South now feel pretty much at liberty to do, go and come as they please. Hurrah for Liberia and Liberty.

At Washington, during two weeks past the receipts of apples from Maryland farmers have been much greater than for eight years before, and much greater than ever before in so short a time. In the three or four thousand barrels received were counted nearly 30 varieties, including many of the choice varieties of fall apples. This may be good news to the Washingtonians, but we don't believe that it will benefit us—or the apples either.

A Venice paper says: "Sanctified from the time of the Saxons and Plantagenets, no law is ever abrogated in England; there the second son of the opulent lord is a beggar; there the husband may drag his adulterous wife to the market place, with a cord about her neck, and sell her within twenty-four hours; there the punishment of the rod is in full bloom. Is it, under such circumstances, wonderful that the people of England should wish for a thorough civil and political reform?" No, indeed, we shouldn't wonder.

WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH.—An accident of a painful and fatal nature occurred a few days since at the house of Edward Lyon, in Williamsport. A lady of the house had gone to the basement to see to the fire in the furnace, when a young girl, Miss Mary Bussler, aged about fifteen years, followed her to get a scuttle of coal. By some accident, the dress of one or the other caught on a poker which was hanging up, when it fell striking a glass kerosene lamp, in the hands of Miss Bussler, which broke and poured the contents over the dress of the unfortunate girl, and her clothes were on a fire in a moment. She became wild with fright and ran up stairs screaming for help. One of the ladies was severely burned in her efforts to extinguish the flames, without effect Mr. Frank Campbell, in passing, heard the screams and, thinking the house on fire, went in, and Judge Packer arriving about the same time, they succeeded in smothering the flames; but the poor girls clothes were almost wholly burned from her body, and the flesh on her body and arms burned black. She lingered in great agony until Sunday about one o'clock, when death put an end to her suffering.

☞The cost of living in New York at the present time is almost incredible, and it is astonishing where the money comes from to support such extravagance. Furnished houses in fashionable avenues rent for $1,000 per month. A family living at one of the large hotels pays $700 per week for rooms and board. The average price for large rooms and board in the principal hotels can not be had for less than $150 per week for man and wife.

To Subscribers.

Brief Items.

—Read the "pen and scissor items" in to-day's Globe. We shall endeavor to keep it up.

—Local freights which formerly ran from Mifflin here, have been changed to run from Harrisburg here.

—We hear that a half round house is to be built in West Huntingdon.—This is necessary for the accommodation of outstanding engines.

—William Bennett, the man who attempted to rob a store in Alexandria a short time ago, was last week sentenced to three months imprisonment in the county jail.

—We think the organization of a "Young Men's Christian Association" in this place would prove of great benefit. Will some energetic young men agitate and effect its organization?

—A Convention of the County Superintendents of Common Schools of the State will be held at Harrisburg, on the 4th of December next. It will remain in session three days.

—A charter was granted, by the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of this State, at its last session in Philadelphia, to the new lodge at Saxton, Bedford county. The revival of the order in this place has been talked of.

—Joseph Hubler, of Black Log, Juniata county, killed a bear on Monday last with an axe, which cleaned 225 pounds. This man should forward a narration of his rencontre to Beadle's Dime Novel.

—The merchants and business men generally are complaining of the dullness of the times. They have the consolation (!) of knowing that merchants in eastern cities are troubled with the same complaint.

—The largest buckwheat crop ever raised in Pennsylvania was that of last season. This is good news, and we hope by a general use of the wholesome article, that there will be a wholesome reduction in the price of wheat flour.

—Bogus five cent pieces are in circulation. They are made from block tin and other base medals. The imitation is not very good, the coin being lighter in weight and darker in color than the genuine. We have seen very few of the genuine in this section.

—A good sign—That no criminal was sentenced to undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary at the last Court. The majority of the cases tried were those of assault and battery, and of fornication, etc.; of the latter there is a gratifying decrease.

—Our merchants should not forget that now is the time to advertise for the holidays. Whatever is good to know should be well known, and our business men would surely profit if by liberal advertising they make known to the public what they are prepared to do during the holidays.

—Quite a number of the conductors on the Pennsylvania Railroad have been discharged. The first notification they had of their removal was when they went to get their pay. The circumstance elicited general comment in this place, as the conductors were familiarly known.

—The Monitor can not see the negro suffrage policy of the Chicago Times in a "policy" light. Our cotemporary should not forget that the Times views policies from a different standpoint, and that, perhaps; in the West the Democrats are more apt to catch at straws than in Pennsylvania.

—A lunatic was in town last week, hailing from Bedford. He was represented as having been a rich merchant at Bedford, though the cause of his derangement is not known. The first indication was shown by his traveling through the neighboring country, and buying up a large number of cattle at enormous rates per head. He was taken to the Harrisburg Lunatic Asylum.

—The Democrats of Bedford county held a jollification on Monday last celebrating the defeat of the Constitutional Amendment in the late elections The Gazette in one of its headings on the subject has the following: "Hickory may be bent but cannot be broken." The "unterrified" of Bedford have a better way of bending to their defeat than that of other counties.

—The new planing mill in West Huntingdon is being rapidly completed, all that is wanting is the machinery. The schute for admitting the water power has been almost completed, and operations will no doubt commence early in the spring. Mr. Burchinell, the proprietor, deserves credit for the energy he has displayed in introducing a "new order of things" in Old Huntingdon, and we trust the experiment will open the eyes of our less enterprising capitalists, and lead them to invest their money in that which is not only profitable to themselves but to the town. We allude to mills and manufactories of different descriptions.

Great Excitement at the Upper End of Town.—The People Rushing in that Direction by Scores—To see the large stock of new Goods just received by S. E. Henry & Co., of the mammoth store. Don't fail to give them a call and examine their goods before purchasing elsewhere. In their establishment, you can find anything you want, from a needle up to a lumber yard or coal mine. It is scarcely necessary for us to enumerate a long list of articles in this item, but just give them a call and ask for what you want and we will wager you our old beaver that you will get what you ask for.—You will always find that "gay and festive cuss," Major W. F. Johnson, or that "prince of good fellows," Captain Tom Johnson, to wait on you, and who take great pride in showing their goods to all who may favor them with a call. Remember the place—at the mammoth store, west end of Huntingdon. It

The Huntingdon Cornet Band.

Now that the Borough of Huntingdon is again blessed with a band, and a band that it can well be proud of, would it not be doing its members justice to aid them in procuring Instruments? The members are willing to do all their ability will allow them, but, besides devoting all their spare time to the advancement of the band they have many other expenses; these they are willing to meet, but they think it not doing justice to have them purchase Instruments. There are very few of our citizens who do not love to listen to good music, and it seems nothing more than fair that they should contribute something, being furnished liberally, as they have been, since the band has been organized. It has been very little encouragement to our young men thus far studying as they have been and receiving no benefit from it. The good enterprising citizens will not surely allow old Huntingdon to be outdone in generosity to benevolent institutions by neighboring towns. Many or all in fact of these Instruments they have now are old and unfit for use, having been used in Bands among the first started in the town, and are consequently so impaired that it is a waste of time to use them.

A New Postmaster at Huntingdon.

The President has appointed G. ASHMAN MILLER Postmaster at this place, vice JOHN READ removed.

This appointment was a surprise to some of our citizens—to others it was not. While we do not endorse the appointment politically, personally Mr. Miller was our first choice if the appointment had to be made from the ranks of the Democratic organization.

Conflagration—Man Burned to Death.

On Saturday evening last, a small building in Perrysville, adjoining Buck's Warehouse, in which an old citizen of this county, named Nathan Thomas, held forth, doing odds and ends in all kinds of trades, caught fire by some means or other, not yet discovered, and was totally destroyed. The old man, when the citizens of Perrysville reached the scene, was found lying senseless in the opposite corner of the shanty from where his bed was and seriously burned about the head and shoulders, and although promptly rescued, gave no signs of life. It is supposed that the old man had not yet retired to bed, but had fallen into a doze on his seat, and having been stifled with the smoke, and bewildered, had been unable to find the door, and thus had perished in his attempts to get out. He was in the habit of indulging in sprees, but on the night in question when last seen was sober, but being in the neighborhood of seventy years, of age, it is supposed that he was so completely bewildered by the excitement of the occasion that he could make no efforts to rescue himself from his tragic fate. He was buried on Monday last.

The deceased was formerly very well and favorably known in the county, having been a "captain of militia" in the day of those popular occasions called "trainings."—Juniata Republican.

"The Camp, the Battle-field and the Hospital" or, Lights and Shadows of the Great Rebellion, is the title of a handsome volume, just issued by the National Publishing Company, 507 Minor Street, Philadelphia, Pa. The Author, Dr. L. P. Brockett, has delved most industriously amongst the masses of curious incidents which have marked the late war, and has grouped and classified them under appropriate heads, and in a very attractive form.

There is a certain portion of the war that will never go into the regular histories, nor be embodied in romance or poetry, which is a very real part of it, and will, if preserved, convey to succeeding generations a better idea of the spirit of the conflict than many dry reports or careful narratives of events, and this part may be called the gossip, the fun, the pathos of the war. This illustrates the character of the leaders, the humor of the soldiers, the devotion of women, the bravery of men, the pluck of our heroes, the romance and hardships of the service. From the beginning of the war the author has been engaged in collecting all anecdotes connected with or illustrative of it.

The volume is profusely illustrated with over 100 engravings by the first artists, which are really beautiful; worthy of examination as specimens of the art. The book's contents include reminiscences of camp, picket, spy, scout, bivouac, siege and battle-field adventures; thrilling feats of bravery, wit, drollery, comical and ludicrous adventures, etc., etc.

Amusement as well as instruction may be found in every page, as graphic detail, brilliant wit, and authentic history, are skillfully interwoven in this work of literary art.

It is just a volume as will find numerous purchasers, and just such a one as persons seeking to act as bookagents should add to their list.

Peterson's Philadelphia Counterfeit Detector.

This periodical, which is a regular hand book in Banks, Offices, Counting Houses and Stores, is issued on the 1st and 15th of each month, and has become a necessity to all business men. Besides distinctive articles upon forged Treasury Notes and imitations of National Bank Notes, it shows the par value of all notes, in every State in the Union, and give regular lists of all new Counterfeits and Broken Banks, state of the various Markets, Financial and Commercial Notes.

Petersons' Detector is carefully, ably and honestly conducted and edited, and from its large circulation, necessarily is a good advertising medium, though its space for that purpose is not very large. Some people think because our currency is nearly all National Bank and United States Notes, there is no need for "Peterson's Detector." Why now is the time to have one ready for reference. The facilities for counterfeiting have largely increased since the adoption of the National Banking system, under which all the banks use a uniform plate for each denomination, with only a difference of locality. This fact warrants a liberal expenditure on the part of the counterfeiters in getting up a fac simile on any one of the National Banks, which, when detected on that particular bank, is immediately adapted to some other bank by simply changing the locality, and so on through the whole two thousand National Banks; whereas, formerly, a counterfeit on any State Bank, when detected, at once became worthless.

For these reasons the Detector daily grows of more importance to the public than ever. Terms of subscription to Petersons' Counterfeit Detector, corrected by Drexel & Co., bankers, is, for the Monthly issue, (per annum) $1 50; Semi-monthly, (per annum) $3.00; single number, 15 cents. To agents $10 a hundred net cash. Subscriptions may commence with any month. Terms cash in advance. Address all letters to T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa.

Festival.

The colored people, as announced last week, will hold a Festival in their new church, commencing on Thursday next, Thanksgiving day. The proceeds will be applied to liquidating the debt on their church, and it is expected that the white folks will assist liberally in promoting the spiritual interests of the colored people in our midst. Let white and colored lend a helping hand, and whatever prejudices may exist, let them be thrown aside.

Glorious News!

$100 ADDITIONAL BOUNTY!!

NEW BOUNTY LAW PASSED!

Attention, Discharged Soldiers!

The Act of Congress approved July 28, 1866, gives $100 additional bounty to all soldiers who enlisted for three years and were discharged by reason of expiration of service, or who were discharged for wounds received in battle and who have not received more than $100 bounty for such service. An additional bounty of $100 is also allowed to the nearest relative of soldiers who enlisted for a term of three years and who died or were killed in the service, to be paid in the following order: First, to the widow; second, to the children; third, to the father, and fourth, to the mother.

Soldiers' Widows.

By applying to W. H. Woods, of Huntingdon, Huntingdon county, Pa., you can have your pensions increased two dollars a month for each and every child you have, and when the widow has married or died, the children are entitled to the increase.

To all who have brought home the bodies of their friends who died or were killed in the service of the United States, there is a certain amount of compensation allowed you for the expenses incurred in bringing home the bodies of your friends, which you can obtain by making application to me.

Invalid Soldiers, Attention!

The act of Congress, approved June 6, 1866, gives additional pensions to the following class of persons:

Soldiers who have lost both eyes or both hands, $25 per month; who have lost both feet $20 per month; who have lost one hand or one foot, or totally disabled in the same, $15 per month.

Persons who have been deprived of their pensions in consequence of being in the civil service of the United States Government, can be restored to the pension roll by applying to me.

Fathers and mothers who were in whole or in part dependent upon their sons for support are entitled to a pension. Also brothers and sisters under sixteen years of age

All discharged soldiers who did not receive transportation to their places of enlistment when discharged, are entitled to receive it; and also all who were held as prisoners of war, and did not receive commutation of rations when released or discharged, are entitled to it.

Officers who were in the service on the 3d of March, 1855, and were discharged after the 9th of April, 1865, by applying to me can receive three months extra pay.

Soldiers of 1812!

All soldiers, or soldiers' widows, of the war of 1812, who have served two months, or been wounded or disabled in such service, if in necessitous circumstances, are entitled to an annuity of $16.

Local Bounty.

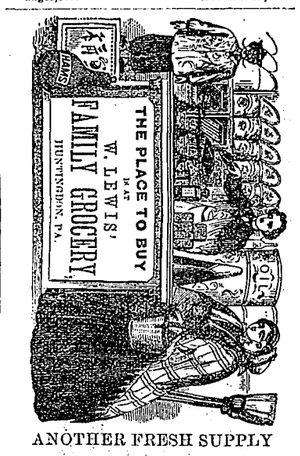

All veteran soldiers who gave their credit to districts in the State of Pennsylvania, and who received no local bounty, are entitled to receive three hundred dollars.

All persons having any of the above mentioned claims, or any other kind of claim against the United States or State Governments, will please address me, giving full particulars, enclosing a stamp for return postage, and they will receive a prompt reply.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

TO THE LADIES.—Do you really intend to cease wearing the beautiful styles now so prevalent, or dress less elegantly, because the rebel Jeff. Davis, was captured in Fashionable Female attire? One moment's calm reflection will surely serve to change your rash resolve. The angels had too much good sense to lay aside their pure chaste robes of white, because they had for a time served to hide the deformities of that Prince of Rebels, the Devil. Can you err in following the example of Angels? Then having made up your minds that you will continue to dress tastefully regardless of rebel acts, do not forget to call at the store of the subscribers, who will be happy at all times to furnish you with such articles of dress as you may desire. Urge your fathers, husbands, brothers, neighbors and children to visit the same store. They can here be suited in good articles of Boots, Shoes, Clothing Material, Hats, Caps, Queensware and a general assortment of Groceries, on as reasonable terms as at any House in town. Store on Southeast corner of the Diamond, Huntingdon, Pa.

LATEST FASHIONS DEMAND

J. W. Bradley's Celebrated Patent Duplex Elliptic, or Double Spring,

SKIRT.

The wonderful Flexibility and great comfort and pleasure to any lady wearing the Duplex Elliptic Skirt will be experienced particularly in all crowded assemblies, operas, carriages, railroad cars, church pews, arm chairs, for promenade and house dress, as the skirt can be folded when in use to occupy a small place as easily and conveniently as a silk or muslin dress, an invaluable quality in crinoline, not found in any single spring skirt.

A lady having enjoyed the pleasure, comfort, and great convenience of wearing the duplex elliptic steel spring skirt for a single day, will never afterwards willingly dispense with their use. For children, misses and young ladies they are superior to all others.

They will not bend or break like the single spring but will preserve their perfect and graceful shape when three or four ordinary skirts will have been thrown aside as useless. The hoops are covered with double and twisted thread and the bottom rods are not only double springs, but twice (or double) covered; preventing them from wearing out when dragging down stoops, stairs, &c.

The Duplex Elliptic is a great favorite with all ladies and is universally recommended by the Fashion Magazines as the standard skirt of the fashionable world.

To enjoy the following inestimable advantages in crinoline, viz: superior quality, perfect manufacture, stylish shape and finish, flexibility, durability, comfort and economy, enquire for J. W. Bradley's Duplex Elliptic, or double spring skirt, and be sure you get the genuine article.

CAUTION.—To guard against imposition be particular to notice that skirts offered as "Duplex" have the red ink stamp, viz: "J. W. Bradley's Duplex Elliptic Steel Springs" upon the waist band—none others are genuine. Also notice that every hoop will admit a pin being passed through the centre, thus revealing the two (or double) springs braided together therein, which is the secret of their flexibility and strength, and a combination not to be found in any other spring.

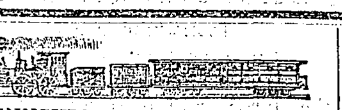

For sale in all stores where first class skirts are sold throughout the United States and elsewhere.

Manufactured by the sole owners of the patent.
